How much will this pandemic cost us? And how will we pay? The mounting cost of Britain's coronavirus response is astounding. The furlough scheme alone could cost an estimated £80bn; overall, the package will result in a deficit of nearly £300bn in the current financial year, up from £55bn in March's budget, the Office for Budget Responsibility forecast on Thursday.

India needs to urgently reach out to poor, migrant labourers: Kaushik Basu

India needs to urgently reach out to the poor and migrant labourers who are walking hundreds of miles to reach their homes, otherwise this will be a "failure for us", former chief economic advisor Kaushik Basu said on Thursday. Basu, a professor of economics at Cornell University, also said that for many current problems associated with COVID-19, India has to use the extra fiscal spending and space, even though the deficit is going to grow.
